Iar Embedded Workbench For Msp430 Crack

The screenshot displays the IAR Embedded Workbench IDE interface. The main window shows the source code for `main.c` in the `stm32.c` file, with a watermark for 'www.300down.com'. The code includes conditional logic for LED control based on `LED1` and `LED2` states, and a `void STM32_LEDOff(Led_TypeDef Led)` function. The `GPIO_PORT[Led]->BSRR = GPIO_PIN[Led];` line is highlighted in yellow.

The Disassembly window on the right shows the corresponding assembly instructions, including `STRH`, `UXTB`, `LDR.W`, and `LDRR.W` instructions, with memory addresses and register references.

The Trace window at the bottom shows the execution flow, including instructions like `UXTB`, `LDR.V`, `LDRR.V`, and `STRH`, along with their addresses and data values.

The Function window on the right lists the call stack, showing the current function `Calls to STM32_LEDOff(Led_TypeDef)` and its callers, including `main(void)` and `LEDsSet(unsigned int)`.
